

Distributed Resource

by

Kit Johnstone, Ph.D.

The future of mankind lies in space and the Internet, we need to distribute our resources to avoid harms on the earth and wars. Our intellectual resources and libraries are among them.

It is true how unity is strength and together we stand, but on the other hand flocking together means fighting over resources since these are distributed well across the universe. Mankind has a tendency to gather together, since even before the Industrial Revolution people have migrated to towns and kingdoms in search for a better life and fortune. Then number gave power and power was abused. It is still being abused today, more and more so. The Internet helps somewhat in making possible a dispersed communicating domain, but it has also its own problems. Evildoers can now persecute people across the space, personal information stolen and crimes similarly perpetrated. Satan the conqueror seems to be a connoisseur of technology, Wi-Fi and bluetooth let you plagiarise unwary blokes then satellite extends the range of that to cover the world. Lucifer is after us with a vengeance, if we do not flee from him full-powered he is going to catch up with us and an armageddon. The earth and its fullness may give us respite from an overcrowding dilemma, but a problem postponed is never a problem properly tackled.
